C.I.A. Aid on Campus

U.S. Efforts to Counter Influence of Communists Hurt by N.S.A. Disclosure

By JAMES RESTON Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, The United States Govern-ment's efforts to counter Communist influence in the universities, press and trade unions of the world have been seriously hampered by the disclosure that the Central Intelligence Agency has been helping to finance the National Student Association since 1952. It is understood that President Johnson has instructed the News C.I.A. to liquidate Analysis all secret aid programs to student. groups and to review all other programs designed to combat Communisticativities in other private organizations.

The controversy goes beyond the agency's financial help to the student association. It involves the relationship between the C.I.A. and private foundations that served as a cover for the agency's funds. It involves other foundations, such as the Ford Foundation, which also gave money of its own to the

It places in jeopardy C.I.A. programs to anti-Communist publications, radio and television stations, and labor unions And it embarrasses a number of former officials of the student association, who knew about the secret funds to the association and are now serving in important positions in the Government.

The history of the C.I.A.'s aid to the student group helps explain both the policy and the explain both the policy and the embarrassing consequences of the union of structure that policy. The first C.I.A. aid to the association was negotiated in 1952 by William Densor, then president of the student organization. The reason for establishing C.I.A. help to the student association, however, is perfectly clear. In the years immediately after the second world war, the Soviet Union took the lead in trying to organize and propagandize the world student movement.

In 1946, when the first World Student Congress met in Prague, the student association in spethe Communist delegations gained control of several key positions, and imposed the Mos-
